To Whom It May Concern.

Gladys Sturt was a pupil at this comprehensive secondary boarding school from 16th January, 1950, to 15th December, 1952.

Throughout her stay Gladys worked steadily and with interest, and her results were quite satisfactory. She passed the General Certificate of Education examination at ordinary level in English language, English literature and art.

Her conduct was excellent. She was a loyal member of her house and most trustworthy. As a house monitor she proved a good influence on the younger members who liked and respected her.

During her last term at school Gladys gave up a good deal of her leisure to assist in the running of the library. She hopes to make librarianship her career, and all her work in the library was characterised by keenness and conscientiousness. Were she to secure employment in this or a related field I am confident that she would give efficient and tireless service.
